Corporate Financial Performance Report — 2011

A narrative summary of annual financial results for 11 publicly traded companies for fiscal year 2011, covering market valuation, profitability, capital structure, and workforce size.

This document presents the 2011 annual financial performance of 11 companies spanning multiple industry sectors. For each company, the report describes market capitalization, revenue, gross profit, net income, earnings per share, EBITDA, shareholder equity, return on investment, and total employee count, as originally recorded for fiscal year 2011.

AAPL

In 2011, AAPL operated in the Information Technology sector and reported a market capitalization of $376.40 billion. The company generated revenue of $108,249 million and a gross profit of $43,818 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $25,922 million and earnings per share of $0.9886 for the period. AAPL reported EBITDA of $35,604 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $76,615 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 33.83%. As of 2011, AAPL employed approximately 63,300 people worldwide.

MSFT

In 2011, MSFT operated in the Information Technology sector and reported a market capitalization of $218.38 billion. The company generated revenue of $69,943 million and a gross profit of $54,366 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $23,150 million and earnings per share of $2.69 for the period. MSFT reported EBITDA of $29,927 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $57,083 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 33.55%. As of 2011, MSFT employed approximately 99,000 people worldwide.

GOOG

In 2011, GOOG operated in the Information Technology sector and reported a market capitalization of $207.65 billion. The company generated revenue of $37,905 million and a gross profit of $24,717 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $9,737 million and earnings per share of $0.744 for the period. GOOG reported EBITDA of $13,593 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $58,145 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 15.93%. As of 2011, GOOG employed approximately 32,467 people worldwide.

AIG

In 2011, AIG operated in the Banking sector and reported a market capitalization of $44.06 billion. The company generated revenue of $65,105 million and a gross profit of $18,692 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $19,810 million and earnings per share of $11.01 for the period. AIG reported EBITDA of $15,225 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $102,393 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 10.62%. As of 2011, AIG employed approximately 57,000 people worldwide.

PCG

In 2011, PCG operated in the Manufacturing sector and reported a market capitalization of $17.14 billion. The company generated revenue of $14,956 million and a gross profit of $9,623 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $844 million and earnings per share of $2.1 for the period. PCG reported EBITDA of $4,157 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $12,353 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 3.56%. As of 2011, PCG employed approximately 19,274 people worldwide.

SHLDQ

In 2011, SHLDQ operated in the Finance sector and reported a market capitalization of $3.39 billion. The company generated revenue of $42,664 million and a gross profit of $11,664 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $133 million and earnings per share of $1.19 for the period. SHLDQ reported EBITDA of $1,306 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $8,614 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 1.27%. As of 2011, SHLDQ employed approximately 280,000 people worldwide.

MCD

In 2011, MCD operated in the Food sector and reported a market capitalization of $88.56 billion. The company generated revenue of $27,006 million and a gross profit of $10,686.60 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $5,503.10 million and earnings per share of $5.27 for the period. MCD reported EBITDA of $9,944.70 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $14,390.20 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 20.75%. As of 2011, MCD employed approximately 420,000 people worldwide.

BCS

In 2011, BCS operated in the Banking sector and reported a market capitalization of $33.47 billion. The company generated revenue of $48,866.82 million and a gross profit of $48,866.82 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $6,338.98 million and earnings per share of $1.54 for the period.

BCS reported EBITDA of $1 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $104,600.50 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 1.37%. As of 2011, BCS employed approximately 141,100 people worldwide.

NVDA

In 2011, NVDA operated in the Electronics sector and reported a market capitalization of $8.46 billion. The company generated revenue of $3,543.31 million and a gross profit of $1,409.09 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $253.15 million and earnings per share of $0.1075 for the period. NVDA reported EBITDA of $442.74 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $3,181.46 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 7.90%. As of 2011, NVDA employed approximately 6,029 people worldwide.

INTC

In 2011, INTC operated in the Electronics sector and reported a market capitalization of $123.48 billion. The company generated revenue of $53,999 million and a gross profit of $33,757 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $12,942 million and earnings per share of $2.39 for the period. INTC reported EBITDA of $23,541 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $45,911 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 24.42%. As of 2011, INTC employed approximately 100,100 people worldwide.

AMZN

In 2011, AMZN operated in the Logistics sector and reported a market capitalization of $78.72 billion. The company generated revenue of $48,077 million and a gross profit of $10,789 million for the year. It recorded a net income of $631 million and earnings per share of $0.0685 for the period. AMZN reported EBITDA of $1,945 million, which reflects operating profitability before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization, while the company held shareholder equity of $7,757 million on its balance sheet. Profitability relative to invested capital stood at a return on investment of 7.88%. As of 2011, AMZN employed approximately 56,200 people worldwide.